On the Death of a Cousin. And has thy gentle spirit flown
To realms of endless peace;
So soun, and yet forever gene,
To that ethereal, happy home,
Where pain and sorrow cease

Ah! yes, so soon, and see must part, With one so mild, sincere;
And now each fond endeaving heart,
Most feel the ugonizing smart,
And o'er thy tomb drop memory's tear.

Yes, sainted Maid, affection true Yes, sainted Mand, arector true
Has mark'd thy early graye:
And often shall those flowers bestrew,
With crystal drops of briny dew,
That o'er thy busom wave.

For there in solitary pride shall bloom Many a beauteous flower,
To deck thy lonely, silent tomb,
As virtue's tributary boon,
In each goy, vernal hour:

Shall early o'er thy bosom ware,
And every passing stranger tell,
Ilow soon thy matchless beauty fell
A rictim—to the Grava The violet, and the mild blue bell,

The following was written by a person in the Retreat, (an institution for the relief of the Insane of the Society of Friends, in England,) who at the time of its composition, laboured under a very comblerable degree of active manis. This is not the only instance in which we have been reminded of the lines of the puet,

"Great wit to mediance ourse, is near allied.

" Great wit to madness, sure, is near allied, And thin partitions do their bounds divide." Vide, Description of the Retreat, page 114.

Ah! how has have despoiled my earliest bloom.
And flung my charms as to the wintry wind:
Ah! how has love fung o'er thy trophied tom!
The spirit of genius and the wreck of mind. High rides the moon the silent heavens along a Thick failthe dews of midnight o'er the ground. Soft steals the lover, when the morning song Of waken'd warblers through the wouds resout

Then I, with thee, my solemn vigils keep, And at thy alter take my lonely stand; Again my lyre unstrung, I sadly aweep, While love leads up the dance, with harp in hand. ingh o'er the woodlands, Hope's gay meteors shore And througing thousands bless'd the ardent ray i turn'd, but found despair on his wild roam, And with the demon bent my hither-way. Soft o'er the vales she blew her bugle horn,
Oh! where Mariai whither dost thou stray?
Beturn, thou false maid, to the echding sound,
I flew, nor heeded the sweet syren's lay.

Hail, Mclancholy! to you lonely towers, I turn, and hall thy time-worn turrets mine, Where fourish fair the night shade's deadly flowe And dark and blue, the wasting tapers shine. There, O my Edwin! does thy spirit greet in lancy's maze, thy low'd and wandering maid soft through the bower thy shade Maria meets, And leads thee onward through the myrtle glade

We have a tale; and song may charm the shades, Which cannot rouse to life Maria's mind, Where sorrow's captives hall thy once lov'd maid, To joy a stranger, and to grief resign'd.

Rawin, farewell? go, take thy last adico,
Ah! could my bursting bosom tell thee more;
there, parted here, from love, from life, and you,
I pour my song as on a foreign shore.

But stay, rash youth, the sun has climb'd on high,
The night is past, the shadows all are gone.
For last Maria breathe the eternal sigh,
And wait thy sorrows to the gales of morn. SUBJOINED.

e is no character so much to be pitied as the selfish man. His bosom never with those thousand nameless feelwhose heart is interested in his fellowcreatures, and whose fear and hope, mingle with theirs; who rejoices when they are happy, and grieves at their miafortunes. The natural feelings of man, is well as the maxims of revealed religion, prompt him to extend his wishes to the whole human race; to identify his happiness and his sorrows with theirs. But men are found who stifle the native feelings of their hearts, and disregard the commands of heaven; who move on in unruffled placidity, and only grieve when their own interests are affected. Away with such men. They are a stain on the escutcheon of humanity; a disgrace to the "human form

If it be true that all the pleasures of life proceed from our social feelings and afctions; if it be true that Must share it, bappiness was born a twin,"

what a mistaken being must be the selfish man. It is an axiom established, that the aim of every human being, is happi ness. The soluter seeks it in the field of glory; the scholar in the delights of a cultivated mind; the merchant in successful speculations; the epicure in the pleasures of the palate; the savage in the chase .-But, the soldier rejoices with his companion in victory, or sympathises in defeat; the scholar's bosom glows with gratitude to the favorite authors whose pages have charmed his soul, and mourns at the disgraceful death of a Seneca, or the shameful fate of an Otway. The merchant's happiness is enhanced at the reflection, that his enterprise has given employment to his fellow men, and in some measure benefitted his country. Even the epicure's pleasure is heightened by the jobrother overtake the swift footed deer .-But the selfish man feels only for himself, and foolishly expects to find happiness! As well might he look for nourishment and health from a hemlock's root. Selfishness will prove his bane, and put beyond his reach that which he is in search of. As men naturally love those who are fond of them, so they as naturally dislike him whose feelings never mingle with theirs, and " round whose heart a circle is drawn beyond which his affections go not."-Who would wish to live without the love and esteem of his fellow-creatures-who would wish to pass through life, deservedly despised by the world? Surely few. Opposed to selfishness, is benevolence, and every virtue that adorns human nature. In its train are avarice and injustice; it is the parent of many vices; and the selfishness of GREAT men has been a fruitful source

It has lately become fashionable to sneer at the good opinion of the world. But next to an approving conscience, the most to be desired, is the approbation of our fellowmen. The wishes of good men are an honourable excitement to virtuous conduct and patriotic actions; and (as an ancient writer truly says) every honest man will support his good name at the point of his life, nor feel a desire to live after it is gone. BEING IN LOVE.

BEING IN LOVE.

Being in love, like being in debt, is to be in a state of apprehension. From the first development in our hearts of that sensation which informs us that an object is not indifferent to us to the moment of certainty, there is a perpetual irritation that makes what may be styled the fever of the passion, which, as medical men would say, takes a variety of character from the slower kind of temperate climates to the intense paroxyams of tropical enes. The high spirited man, warm in constitution, and full of ardour, will generally find have a tropical effection; while the lover of a thin disarded binual wift be accounty against of the insidious advances of his disarder. With some, being in twee is merety a muster of calculation and contract; with others, it is a segister of sighs and metaneholy, of romantic sensations and impracticable expectations. The Romans made as much use of their forks; and Gotd, in his Art of Love, gives it as a piece of Chestordeldian advice to the young gallants of his time, "not to smear their mouths with their greesy hands," more than was necessary. A mappia, or napkin, for each individual, was thus absolutely requisite. Every guest brought his own; and, lest the overturning of sauce hoats and gravy, should not do it full justice, it was made further serviceshie as a pocket handlerchief. The middle ranks of citaens were clad in white woollen vestments, which were, of course, as dirty, habitually, as might be expected from the general poverty of the wearers; while the beare plebians, not able to affect this shabby gratility, contented themselves with garmonts of the colour and quality, and meanness of a Mendicent Friar's. Their shirts, too, were composed of the same material, and from these causes, aided by the bicosing of a hot climate, and the plentiful use of garlic, the effluvia of their public assemblies was so powerful that, even in a theatre without a roof, the Emperor found it expedient to oprishte his faithful subjects with show-ers of ruse-water."

Pleasure—" In the common actions of our lives, the pleasure lies almost entirely in the pursuit, and very little in the attainment. He that at which should have four honours, six trumps, always dealt him, would lose his whole diversion, because he would have nothing to do but them down his cards, and win the game. In howling, the player takes eare to deliver his bowl seight: he runs after it, chides, encourages it, writhes his bedy in all manner of contortions, as if to influence its biast and in this consists his entertainment—for the joy of winning the game is over in a moment—butakes his stake, pockets it, and only thinks where to throw the jack for beginning another east."

Lour.—"When we hear complaints of the writchedness or vanity of human life, the proper answer to them would be, that there is hardly any one, who, at some time or suber, Aus nor feen in four—If we consider the high abstraction of this feeling, its depth, its purity, its voluptuous refinement, even in the measure breast, how sacred and how sweet it is, this alone may reconcile us to the tof humanity. Mr. Goodacas, from England, has arrived in this city, and purposes to deliver here a course of eight lectures on Astronout. They will be eluci lated, says the editor of the National Gazette by a more splendid and extensive apparatus than any ever exhibited to the public. By means of this collection of instruments and scientific ex-plantions, the Lecturer hopes to render the subline phenomena of the Universe intelligible and phin to those who have not studied the principles of them, and at the same time to grapify proficients. It is his intention to deliver an Introductory Lee tire, embracing a history of Astronomy; arguments to prove its utility; and a general er-Planation and partial exhibition of some of the various instruments to be used in the Course.

NEW POST OFFICE REGULATION.

The Post Master General has issued circulars to deputies, requiring them to obtain from all publishers of in wspapers mailed in their respec-tive offices, returns upon oath, of the numbers of laters deposited in the mail, and the post offices which they are directed; the oath of the person ho folds and directs the papers will be admitted This nath will be required at the expiration of very three monds. These accounts are to be transmitted to Washington, for the inspection of re presiding officer in that department. Post ne aspapers, one quarter in advance—to apprize princes of ad papers not taken out of their offices, and they will be required to account with the General Post Office, for the postage of all newspapers, unless they can show that the subscribers refused to receive them, and that the printer was apprized of the fact.

A difference of opinion is maintained among publishers of papers as to the policy of the above measure; some do say that it is unauthorised and not agreeable to the laws of the land. Certainly the Post Master General would not undertake to impose a requisition upon the press, which was not tenable? His means of information are too extensive to suspect this. We believe the atentions of Mr. M'Lane to be purely patriotic, and that this act was loudly called for by the frequent and numerous impositions which have been practised on the Post Office establishment.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

The British packet Lady Louiss, nrrived at New-York on Wednesday last, from Falmouth, Eng. and has beought London papers to the 9th of Sept. These papers furnish two important articles of intelligence —THE GOVERNMENT OF PORTUGAL HAS JOINED FRANCE IN HER WAR AGAINST SPAIN, and sent a naval force to assist in the siege of Cadiz; and the Trocadero, a fortress in the island of Leon, has been taken possession of by the troops under the Duke of Angouleme. Should the latter part of this intelligence, (says the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser,) which comes in an official shape through the Moniteur of the 7th of September, prove correct, as we fear it will, it is a most unfavourable commencement of the attack upon Cadiz. For the last two months, we have been told that Valdez, the Governor of Cadiz, who is regarded in the whole of the French army as a able man, and who has been completely fall the operations of defence, has bent fe of his attention to fortify this point. He has separated it from the neighboring land by a trench 35 or 40 fishoms in breadth, into which the sea enters, and filled this immense chasm with a great number of gun-boats, placing a ship of war at the entrance. It was the opinion of the persons sho had seen the work, that it would render so attack on the Trocadero, if not impracticable, at least productive of an immense loss of life. Up to the very last hour, the London Times was very sanguine of the moral impossibility of the French taking this fortress. The peninsula Trocadero, comprising the forts Trocadero, St. Joseph and Matagorda, shuts up the entrance of the inner port, leaving between the fort Matagorda and Pontales a channel of only about 500 toises wide. Pontales is built on a point of sand, which also bears the name of Pontales, and this point is at the end of the causeway which unites the island of Leon.

Advices from Madrid are to the 1st of Septem ber inclusive. The Restaurador of that date says, "the Regency having established the principle, that all the property belonging to the clergy, regular and secular, shall be fully restored to them, the purchasers of the said property have been authorised, for this year only, to collect the crops of the ecclesiastical lands, but under the express condition of paying the rents, &c. due from the said lands to the legitimate proprictors. ANTIGUA

The master of the sloop Sally, arrived at Nor-folk, in twesty-four days from Antigus, states that strong apprehensions were entertained there of an insurrection among the negroes.

METHODISM IN AMERICA.

METHODISM IN AMERICA.

The increase of this religious denomination, perhaps is not exceeded by any christian arct of the present age. A cursory view of its history, will tend to justify the above assertion.

Mr. Ph. Embury, a local preacher from Ireland, was the first who landed in America. He began to preach in the city of New York, and formed a society in the year of our Lord 1766; and the first American Methodist Church was erected partly by contributions from Europe, and located in John street, New-York, A. D. 1768 or 9. About the same time Messrs. Richard Boardman and Joseph Pilmore, arrived as missionaries, regularly appointed to labour in this country, by the Hittish coned to labour in this country, by the British con-ference. From that time to the present, a period of 59 years, the borders of this church have been extended, until it presents the following aggregate, viz :-- twelve gate, viz:—twelve annual conferences: twelve hundred and twenty six travelling preachers, and a total of three hundred and twelve thousand, five hundred and forty members. Exhibiting also, a thousand nine hundred and eight, according to the returns just made, which exhibited the total num ber of members within the bounds of each confer ence as follows:

Ohio, 36,382; Kentucky, 24.168; Missouri,
10.752; Tennessee, 21,166; Mississippi, 8,724;
South Carolins, 37,016; Varginis, 23,893; Baltimore, 38,424; Philadelphia, 44.387; New York, 27,437; New England, 21,928; Genesse, 27,698.
The Methodists have, with other denominations, cast their mite into the treasury of Missionary exertion. Missionaries have been successfully sent to several tribes of the aborgines of our country;
and if we turn our eyes to foreign missionary exand if we turn our eyes to foreign missionary ga-tablishments, we behold the Hottentuts of the Cape of Good Hope, the Naimnaquan of the interior, the South Sea Islands, Ceylon, and numerous Islands of the West Indies, presenting a field not only white, but pending auto the harvest.

POSTSOUTHE.

New York, Oct. 24.—The brig Cyprus, Capt. Chaddock, which arrived at Boston on Friday last. from the Mediterraneau, passed Gibraltar Sept. 18, and spoke brig Emeline, which left that port the preceding evening for Boston, and was informed that the French had taken Tariffa. It is probable if Cadia had surrendered the commander of the E would have mentioned it.

A great many fires have occurred at Warsaw during the aummer by lightning. Nearly forty persons of various ages have been killed or wounded, or loss their hearing.

Capt, Kutachue, of the Bussian navy, has sailed on his that vivous of discovery round the sortd. He is to go to Rioule Janeiro, round Cape Horn, and to the South seas. He had arrived at Copenhages.

From New-Orleans,—By the packet brig Edward, we have received New Orleans papers to the 4th inst. inclusive. The city continued remarkably healthy, and the deaths during the week ending flept. 29th, were only 24, being 13 less than occurred the preceding week. Only one death by yellow fever had been reported, and no case of this discase was known to exist.

Advices from Natchez, to Sept. 24th, state that no new case of epidemic had appeared in that place for the last four days. The board of health were directing the usual precautionary measures preparatory to the return of the absent catizens. The total number in the place on the 19th, was ascertained to be 784.

A PLAIN CASE. Bill Bubstay and Jock Tarpaulis,
Then whose no hearts were truer
Comrades in pener and battle's din,
Were generous, brave and poor.

At length, perchance, by Fate's decree,
It was their lot to sever.

Each sought to tempt a distant sea,
Nayhap to muel, O never.

When years had past, and Jock bethought Poor Bill was under hatches, Them chance again together brought, (O'er sorth still Portune watches)

Poor Jack with life escap'd from wreck, And Hill in splendour solling, Each clasp'd a faithful, hinest neck,

All meanic thoughts controlling.

"But how," said Jack, "this alter'd case?

"Yes source remain'd a tatter,

"White all your hows are rigg'd with lace!

"This is a wonderous matter."

"The matter's plain, (quoth Bill) dear Jack)

"Mind me, and tear no breaker;

"Like me, take all your cares aback,

"I bought a prize from DECKER,

" We live in comfort, Poll and L. "Not fearing hopes abortion,
"It re's rhino, boy, quick go and buy,
"Tis the true road to Fortune."

And hundreds more may have the good fortune honest Bill, by each purchasing a lucky ticket

The following epitaph is to be seen at Saragossa in Spain: "Here ties John Capbees, precentur of my Lord the King. When he is admitted to the choir of angels whose society he will embellish, and where he will distinguish himself by his powers of song, God will say to the angels, "Cease, ye calves, and let me hear John Cabeca, the precentor of my Lord the King!"

St. Ignatius —A divous lady offered up a prayer in St. Ignatius for the conversion of her husband. A few days after the man did. "What a good saint is our lightima?" exclaimed the consolate widow; "he bestows on as more benefits than we ask for!"

A curious Sign-board .- In Charlton-row Manchoster, (Eng.) there is a painting on a board about a yard square, of an old shoe in its last stage, with a hammer, pincays, and awl; and underneath the following fuscription:-"Jos. Fox, shuemaker, operator in ordinary and extraordinary, translator of soles, uniter of the disunited, and restorer of union and harmony of ever so long and wide a separation.

"N. B. Advice given gratie,
"Ev'n in the worst of desperate cases."

Good Marching .- A publication has recently appeared in Paris, called " Remarks on the French Infantry." The author seems strangely impressed with the truth of Marshal Saxe's maxim, " that the art of war lies in the legs."-Among other anecdotes, he mentions that a great General having asked a young Colonel whether his regiment marched well, and having received for answer, that all the inspecting officers declared that its managuvres were admirable, observed, "You misunderstand me; when I ask you if a regiment marches well, I mean, can it march at the rate of three leagues an hour!"
